

RECORDER

STEP 2

After making a new project you will now see the Record Window again.

The recording window is the most important. It has large buttons so that everything can be operated easily. We are assuming that you have worked with recording equipment before so the controls should be self-explanatory.

Things you should be aware of are:

- Each time a recording is started a new file with a new name is written. The names are selected as follows: If, for example, you have made an mp2 project 'test', the first file that is recorded will be 'test00.mp2'. After stopping and then re-starting a recording, the file 'test01.mp2' will be recorded, etc. This doesn't have the disadvantages of ONE large, difficult to manage, file and it is also more reliable and will result in less damage if a mistake is made by accident.
- If your PocketPC has its own record button, you can also use that one to start and stop recording in Luci. To enable this, please make sure you have this record-button pointing to Luci in your PDA's settings/buttons screen.
- If you press the record-button during recording, a marker is written at that specific point in the recording. You can write as many markers as you like.
